Organochlorines are generally degraded by microbial oxidation to chlorobenzenes and then chlorophenols. Disinfection may also be involved. Acidogenic dechlorination occurs only under limited conditions. Dechlorination by mixed cultures or by pure cultures of anaerobic bacteria that grow in the presence of chlorinated xenobiotics has not yet been observed.Q: "kill -KILL" is not killing my process, and it keeps being respawned in Amazon EC2 I got a bunch of processes from a bash script that uses 'ps -ef' to get the process IDs and then calls kill -KILL to kill the process.
